Hi all!

Good day!

My oh my... we've been having rainy days with strong winds here in Melbourne.

Still a good day. ;)

Re:Hello Everyone!

Posted by Rafael - 2007/05/31 12:25

In Belgrade we have sunny days, with rain every now and then. So, it's funny to see people walking on sun with their umbrellas, just expecting rain to come :)

Thanks Jacques,

It's nice to see you as our featured member.

I visit AO a lot, but usually don't spend much time on forums. I'm still learning a lot about Asia.

Just know that I'm watching forum activities ;)

hi rafael,

i am curious about serbia,it sounds russia lolol!:laugh:
we once had a croatian national in my work place-- gee
he stands around 6'6" and wears his hair long.

i asked him- are you russian?
no-no-no i'm croatian.. but he's a funny guy :laugh:

by the way it's hot and humid now in here, most people wears short short pants :lol:

hello to all of you and to all of Asia.

Re:Hello Everyone!

Hi Linsi,

it's not weird that it sounds russia, as we're all slavic people (russia, serbia, croatia, montenegro, bosnia, macedonia, slovenia, czech, slovakia, poland, ukraine, belarus... etc). Actually, it's not so hard to understand russian if you are serb - simmilar languages. And croatian is almost the same as serbian (once upon a time they were one language: serbo-croatian language).

average height here is about 6feet (180cm), but if you take a look at young people born after 1980 for example, it's much easier to find someone taller than 180cm than opposite.

let me know if your'e interested in anything else :)

Re:Hello Everyone!

Posted by linsi - 2007/06/03 18:57

hi rafael

yeah tnx, i have to read back first about the history of russia, and it's culture and then maybe find time to ask you about the confusing areas.

but one thing on my mind is its geography?

talk about russia..it is a part of asia? err..asia minor?

sorry for that..let me consult my history book

ask you later,

i remember watching two films which i appreciated much i was amused about the cartoon "anastasia" it was about a heiress of a russian czar? :S (am i right?)
So russia was an empire..

and Kris Tucker's film- "Bad Company" where most of the scenes were taken in prague? :(I don't know the spelling sorry for that..

and now you are in serbia? woah! i really have to read my history book :laugh:
maybe i will ask outstanding questions next time.

:lol:

Re:Hello Everyone!

Hi Linsi,

Don't confuse Russia and others ex-communist countries in Europ, even if in the Balkan some ones where under cultural russian supremacy through the orthodox religion.

Re:Hello Everyone!

Posted by Rafael - 2007/06/03 21:41

Linsi, Jacques,

I think what we started is pretty wide topic :)

Serbia and other ex-yu countries did have some influence from russia in the past, and serbia does now, but it's not as much now as it was before World War II.

As for religion influence - being orthodox christians does have something with it (at least with Serbia, Montenegro, Macedonia..., but not with Croatia or Slovenia as they ar catolics).

Anyway, Linsi don't try to catch up all at once - it's a bit complicated if you're not living here - take one step at a time :)

I'm here if you need any info about it

Re:Hello Everyone!

Posted by Rafael - 2007/06/03 21:47

Oh, and one more thing about orthodox church: it's basically independent in all countries - there is no one major figure as Pope - every major orthodox church as it's Patriarch :)

Re:Hello Everyone!

Posted by Jacques - 2007/06/03 23:09

Hi Linsi and Rafael,

The Yougoslavia history is very complicated, only one man, a communist leader, but free from Moscow dominance, has been capable to make live together Orthodox, Catholics and muslims.

I think it is better for you to get explanations from Rafael by personal messages. It's not an A.O. subject. I just hope that Rafael, as a Serbian, will not be too much on a one side position (as for Taiwan you hited a very sensible question).

Personnaly, generally speaking, I deplore that a country could not be kept unified just because it is shared by different religions. A good leader is the one that is capable to make all the people under his rule to live in harmony.

Hi Jacques,

I agree with you on most of the things, and I also think it's better to speak about it through PM.

I think I'm pretty objective on that matter, but of course, I cannot be 100% sure about that :) It's a pretty rough area we're living in :)

Hi Rafael,

I started learning about Yugoslavia when there was the split between Soviet Union and China and keep an eye on Tito Attitude. I came back to this area with the Kosovo war in which my country has been involved and also try to understand the bombing of Chinese embassy in Belgrade during this war. I learned a lot on your country and I visited it. It's why I could understand that it's not easy for a Serbian to be really independent after the end of the federation.

What could be your personal feelings, I respect them

Jacques, Linsi,

I'm open to discuss about this but let's do it through PM - it's not really an Asia topic :)

Anyway, it was sunny the whole day in Belgrade, but then all of a sudden rain fell down. Which is not so bad, at least it's not too hot here :)

Re:Hello Everyone!

Yes Rafael, as I told to Linsi, that is not an A.O. subject. I just mentioned the interest of an Asia Observer on this area by the China involvement

Well Mr Young by making it secret I couldn't tell anyone anything and wouldn't have to lie and be corrupted and then have to say ...they made me do it

Thanks Lee now I understand, very smart, a bit like not admitting anything.....Where's that nice girl that served us tea last week Mr Young? That wasn't tea Harry that was one of my mixes.....the girl don't you remember...they executed her last week for being a drugs dealer It alrights to call you Harry isn't it Lee just the way things are maybe Harry is better for now..... hello everyone :)

hi jacques, yeah, AO is linking us together--

it is hot and sunny here, still on holidays
but many paperworks at home-how's your plan on fishing jacques? and also to you john, how's your holiday?

i would include rafael too, how's serbia?

later i am going out to festival walk..

its raining here in Raffles Place, Singapore...typical office temperature is very cold. Singaporeans try to compensate its warm and humid weather, by ensuring that offices are freezing cold.

:pinch:

wow! this is the first time I have ever read about Serbia. I havent read the previous posts..is it part of the previous USSR?

can't wait for the Singapore NDP - National Day Parade ! Great Show of Fireworks at the Marina, which we can view from our Office Building....for free..whereas other Singaporeans, expats and tourists, peg a hefty 1,800 sgd per night just to get a room with a view of the Marina during the NDP..

Re:Hello Everyone!

Posted by Sandvand - 2007/07/29 18:53

Why don't you upload some pictures for us, Ruth? It would be great to have a look - for free!

Re:Hello Everyone!

i will take some pics of the Marina while the SG government are preparing for the parade...then I will also take pictures during the NDP itself..

from our office window :) Will I get a paparazzi fee for this?

Just kidding!

National Day Traffic Advisory in Singapore

<http://www.ndp.org.sg/articles/news/traffic/index.html>

Email from our Human Resource Dept

Dear all,

Thank you very much for having confirmed your attendance to our National Day Celebration. This is to share with you the logistics for tomorrow.

Registration

 and  will be at the main lobby of our building (the lobby facing the glass door elevators) from 4:30 to 6:30 pm. All of us who have registered will receive stickers, providing our families and friends with access to the building. At the registration point lunch/dinner coupons will be provided. All guests with sticker passes must be accompanied by a Microsoft Staff Member.

Reception

The areas where we will conduct all the activities related to the National Day celebration are the pantry areas on Levels 21 and 22. The Auditorium on level 22 and the Olio Coffee will also be open for us. The Auditorium will be dedicated for families with babies (Baby Station) and also for guests with special needs. Due to the number of guests that we are expecting (400+) we need your help to secure that we do not take our guests to other floors or office areas.

We will have Balloonists, Face Painters, Pop Corn among others for our kids and friends. We will also have Hot Dogs, Mushroom Focaccia, Kebab Wraps, Nachos and Cake to celebrate Singapore's Birthday.

Due to Road Closures and Control Measures at OMB, Parking will not be available at OMB. So please plan to park elsewhere if you are bringing your car. We strongly recommend to consider public transportation. For further enquires please refer to www.ndp.org.sg/articles/news/traffic/index.html

Should you need any type of support, please do not hesitate to contact *at * or ***.

Thanks again for your participation and we are looking forward to have a great celebration tomorrow!!!

Best regards,

Hello Everyone

Drizzling morning now, last week we prepared for 3 days for our camp outing, sort of--

we went to some ecological place in the new territories and rediscovered nature-- some friends were amazed about simple things like very small crab like creatures running in the sand-

I was thinking way back in the philippines we have lobsters and big crabs in fish ponds and beaches- greeting us (sort to speak)

it was tiring- but we enjoyed things-- we are planning to fo another sort of hiking next week-

these are some of the actual photos of where we went- the photograph was clear but the day was actually windy and drizzling-

hello everyone

the rains keep coming and it gives us a cooler temperature.

hi choco- yeah, your outing for fishing seems interesting too, i remember when i was young when i used to tag-along with my grandmother whenever she goes fishing

she taught me how to fish and i know how to catch one :laugh: in the early mornings i remember we always both go off the seashore and help out pulling the fish nets when the fishermen pull their bancas or boats ashore...

we would then make some fire out of some wood sticks and coconut husk and when everything is done, and the fish ready, we always had lemon and chilli with us- yum :) i miss those days- please tell us your stories because i believe indonesia and the philippines have so much similar things as both are tropical countries...:cheer:

cheers *

congatulations to all of asia observers :)

I noticed that shared article about Afghan Women garnered almost 100 votes- this is an indicator that most people are eager to help distressed nations-let us find a way to help even if we also have our own everyday worries and problems of our own.

research shows that people who always help live longer life than other--there is no scientific basis but it was observed.

either we live longer or not-we find consolation and happiness in helping out.

a very freezing morning to all- china still hit by snow storma and Hong Kongers yesterday awoke to the coldest day this winter when the temperature at the Hong Kong Observatory fell below 8 degrees Celsius.

the icy winds blowing from China,and drizzles make it more shivering ~~~~ to all of us specially in the new territories..

City shivers through its coldest days

Timothy Chui

Monday, February 04, 2008

Hong Kongers yesterday awoke to the coldest day this winter when the temperature at the Hong Kong Observatory fell below 8 degrees Celsius.

It was several degrees lower in most parts of the New Territories while early risers at Ngong Ping saw the mercury dip to a freezing 0.9 degrees Celsius, less than a degree off the all-time low of 0 degree Celsius recorded on January 18, 1893.

Despite the blistering cold, there were no reports of snow as was the case in several areas of the New Territories on December 14, 1975 when temperatures were just above freezing point.

The Observatory said yesterday the cold mornings would persist through the Lunar New Year holidays with the daily highs unlikely to break 15 degrees Celsius.

Today will be partly cloudy with scattered showers and a low of 11 and a high of 15 degrees.

Showers will continue through tomorrow with the cloud cover expected to break on Thursday until Saturday.

A winter monsoon combined with a rain band covering southern China had led to near freezing temperatures last week and over the weekend, according to the Observatory's scientific officer Ng Ping-wing. "An overcast sky blocked out sunlight forcing the temperature down on the ground.

"Transient dry air from the north helped break up clouds yesterday but the weather today and tomorrow will still be cloudy," he said.

The cold weather warning, which was first used in 1999, has been in force for a record 240 hours, breaking January 2004's mark of 205 hours.

However, this pales into insignificance when compared with the 30 days in January 1918 when daily mean temperatures were consistently below 12 degrees Celsius.

Chinese hot-pot and Japanese shabu-shabu restaurants did a roaring trade over the weekend with people looking for ways to stay warm while whetting their appetites.

The Department of Health has warned diners to be on guard for food-borne diseases.

Electronic and home appliance stores have also been enjoying the cold-weather boom with Fortress stores in Sha Tin and Yuen Long running low on stocks of home heaters.

"In the past week alone, we have sold somewhere between 5,000 and 7,000 heaters.

"Compared with last year, we have seen at least a 50 percent growth in heater sales and even our suppliers are having trouble keeping up," said a Fortress spokesperson.

The Observatory maintained its advisory for caregivers and families to check in on the elderly or people with chronic medical conditions living alone.
