
Let's translate and try...

Posted by linsi - 2007/09/08 11:47

I was inspired when choco replied by using "maganda" a tagalog word.

In tagalog: (philippines)

magandang araw sa lahat

which means:

good day to all>

how about you again choco? how would you say it in your native dialect?

how about warezein and truthseeker and the rest from myanmar?

how about pradeep and the rest from india?

how about in bangladesh?

how about with anumpahsaa in lahore?

CVLD in cambodia?

kevin in thailand?

vietnamguides in vietnam?

maybe i would just wait till someone responds-- pray pray that all will...

:kiss:

this would also include john in norway

rafael in serbia

jacques in france

:lol:

ok i'll just wait...:pinch:

Post edited by: linsi, at: 2007/09/08 11:52

Re:Let's translate and try...

Posted by linsi - 2007/09/08 11:49

magandang araw sa lahat..

http://i119.photobucket.com/albums/o123/lindsey22/cartoon_440.gif

Re:Let's translate and try...

Posted by linsi - 2007/09/09 07:21

chosan!

good morning :)

Re:Let's translate and try...

Posted by Sandvand - 2007/09/09 11:42

God morgen!

= Good morning - in Norwegian

B) John

Re:Let's translate and try...

Posted by Choco - 2007/09/10 03:42

Hi Linsi,
in Indonesia, there's no such phrase like HAVE A GOOD DAY.. :(

Here's to share :

Good morning : Selamat Pagi (formal)
I believe, you have 'Salamat' too Linsi .. ;)

John, Linsi, everyone, maybe we can make a 'dictionary' of same words from our worlds, such as : GLASS (English), GIRASU (Japanese), GELAS (Indonesian) .. I dunno the rest, maybe you guys can add more :lol:

BOOK (eng) - BUKU (indo) - ...

Re:Let's translate and try...

Posted by linsi - 2007/09/13 05:19

God morgen john!

i am just pleased to see you more often does that signal us of you having more free time with AO?

Selamat Pagi choco--sounds familiar haha!

and also chosan everyone in hong kong :laugh:

i wonder where is truthseeker to greet us in his own dialect..and others too...

:kiss:

Post edited by: linsi, at: 2007/09/13 05:20

=====

Re:Let's translate and try...

Posted by linsi - 2007/09/23 04:17

Sandvand wrote:
God morgen!

= Good morning - in Norwegian

B) John

God morgen john!

kumusta ka choco-

kumusta sa lahat!

:lol:

=====