A Bangladesh forum?

Mzahsan,

Thank you for your suggestion. It is very quick for us to add another forum if we decide to do so. On the other hand I am a little concerned about having too many forums with little activity. Asia Observer is still a small site, but we are growing.

One option is to make a "South Asia forum" including India, Bangladesh, Pakistan, Sri Lanka.

Another option is to make a Bangladesh forum as you suggest. If we do that it would be very beneficial if you or other members take on the task of promoting the forum and stimulating the discussions. Would you be willing to do that?

What do other users think? Should we add a Bangladesh forum? Are there any other forums you would suggest?

Let me know before we make a decision.

John

That's a great suggestion to make south asian forum. In this regards, we need to add Bangladesh, India, Pakistan, Srilanka, Nepal, Maldives, Bhutan, Afganistan and China(observer)

A huge amount of cultural storage.

Keep it up.

Bangladesh is the third big country in South Asia. It has been obervered by all Asia Watchers. I also think that every member of Saarc has to be in the country list of Asia Observer, but not necessary on a forum base

South Asia forum established

Thank you for your suggestions!

We have had an India forum for some time. Unfortunately there has not been too much activity in this forum. I have therefore renamed it to South Asia forum. This will be the place for discussions about affairs in all the South Asian countries.

If time shows that it will be necessary to divide it into country forums, we will do that.

I encourage all of you to initiate discussions in the new forum!

This thread now naturally is being moved to the new forum.

John
